RECOMMENDATIONS AND REMARKS.

The General Fund.

The condition of the General Fund of the State shows some improvement as compared with the reports of 1896 and 1897. On September 30, 1896, the General Fund warrants outstanding and unpaid, and for the payment of which no funds were available, amounted to $6,600.30; on September 30, 1897, there were outstanding $22,263.70; on September 30, 1898, there were outstanding $3,688.01.

This improvement is due to several causes.

First—The expenditures from the General Fund for the biennial period ending September 30, 1898, were considerably reduced because certain land income funds were appropriated by the Fourth State Legislature, and these were used for purposes for which charges would otherwise have been made against the General Fund.

Second—The Fourth State Legislature, taking a wise view of the condition of the fund, kept the appropriations down to the very lowest amount.

Third—The receipts in the General Fund were materially increased by laws enacted by the Fourth State Legislature, by which the fees of the office of the Secretary of State were augmented and the taxes upon insurance companies were increased. As a result, the fees and taxes of the insurance department were increased from $4,208.50, for the two years ending September 30, 1896, to $20,184.38, for the two years ending September 30, 1898. And the receipts of the Secretary of State's office were increased from $1,644.10 to $9,895.85 for the corresponding biennial periods. The increase from taxation for the General Fund during the same biennial periods was $1,549.38.

Fourth—Pursuant to an act of the Fourth State Legislature the General Fund was augmented by crediting thereto the amounts received from the United States representing the unexpended balances of appropriations made by Congress for the penitentiary at Laramie and the constitutional convention of Wyoming.

The taxpayers of the State may well congratulate themselves upon the improved conditions; but it should constantly be borne in mind that this improvement was brought about by economy and wise legislation, and that nothing but a continuance in this course will prevent a return to the former condition within the next two years.

One of the heaviest drafts upon the General Fund during the past two years has been for wolf bounties. This tax seems unavoidable, as it is in the nature of self preservation; but it should be made more effective if possible. A law uniform with the laws of the surrounding States should be passed. It is very apparent that this State now pays for the destruction of wolves which should be paid for by Colorado, Montana and Nebraska. One feature of the new law should be a large bounty on female wolves and a small one on the males and pups. Under the present conditions the breeding of wolves is a profitable industry, and the female wolf is too valuable an animal to destroy for the reward offered.

ADDITIONAL REVENUE.

A large increase in revenue could be obtained by proper legislation for taxing the output of coal mines as contemplated by the State constitution. A very moderate tax would produce a large revenue.

Express companies pay no tax whatever to the State, and practically none to the counties. There seems to be no reason why they should not contribute to the expenses of the State in the same manner as railroad companies, insurance companies, banks and other corporations.

Transportation lines owning freight cars, known generally as "foreign cars," pay no taxes in this State, although numerous attempts have been made by the State Board of Equalization to assess them. A very large amount of property is allowed to go untaxed in this way for want of an effective law.

DELINQUENT TAXES.

The tabulated statement in this report shows that the counties are delinquent $35,156.40 in principal and $10,697.29 in interest. This delinquency is almost double the amount shown in the report for 1896. The attention of the Attorney General has frequently been called to this matter and his report will doubtless show what may be expected as the result of a suit now pending in the Supreme Court. It is manifestly unfair that certain counties should always pay their levies promptly and in full, while others are always delinquent. The counties should be required by law to pay the tax levied by the State on a given date, whether their levies have been collected or not. The $46,000.00 above mentioned would, if collected, place the General Fund in a much more favorable position and would enable the Legislature to make some sadly needed appropriations for the Insane Asylum, etc.

REVISION OF LAWS.

There is great need of revision of the laws governing the payment of taxes to the State, and the duties and responsibilities of the State Treasurer. The conflict between the Constitution, the Revised Statutes and the Session Laws is so great that an interpretation of them is almost impossible. This is a matter of serious importance and should receive attention.

BIENNIAL REPORTS.

Frequent mention has been made by my predecessors and myself of the desirability of having the law changed so as to require the Treasurer to make and publish biennial instead of annual reports. As the law now provides these reports are made annually. The report made in the year when the Legislature is not to be in session is never printed, and yet it is the more important of the two, as the expenditures of the previous Legislature are therein reported. On the other hand, the report published is for one year only, and unless reference is had to the type-written copy of the unpublished report in the Treasurer's office, there is a very important lapse between the two printed reports. A continuous report covering, as nearly as possible, the period from one Legislature to another, should be required, and provision for its publication should be made.

The Treasurer's report, as well as the reports of other State officers, can now be printed only by the courtesy of some publisher who has sufficient means and confidence to print it, and trust to the Legislature for reimbursement. A special appropriation should be made, as considerable amounts could be saved if the work could be paid for in cash when ready for delivery.

DEPOSIT OF PUBLIC FUNDS.

Section 7, Article 15 of the Constitution requires that public funds shall be deposited in National and State banks, which shall furnish security and pay a reasonable rate of interest for the funds so deposited. No action has yet been taken by the Legislature under this provision, but in view of a recent decision of the Supreme Court with reference to liability upon the State Treasurer's bond, some action seems to be demanded. I submit below a statement in brief of the regulations in several states governing the deposit of public funds. This statement is made after a careful examination of the statutes and as the result of personal interviews and correspondence with the Treasurers of the States adjacent to our own. North and South Dakota appear to be the only ones among the new States which have taken any steps toward designating depositories. There is, however, a general demand for legislation upon the subject. In other States, as in Wyoming, there have been losses of State funds resulting from inadequate statutes and faulty official bonds, creating a general demand for such legislation as will avoid future contingencies of the same kind. In several of the western States, notably Colorado, Idaho and Montana, I am reliably informed that the question of State depositories will be considered during the next legislative session.

A careful consideration of the laws in the other States, and of the conditions in our own State, convinces me that the chief dependence for the safety of the funds must be placed in bonds given by the Treasurer and the banks with which the public funds are deposited, and that while the constitutional provision regarding a reasonable rate of interest must be adhered to, the absolute security of the funds should be the chief aim. I would respectfully suggest the following points for consideration:

First—The bond of the State Treasurer should be so drawn as to insure the safe-keeping, accounting for and delivery of the State funds, excepting only when such funds are deposited in a State depository, according to law.

Second—The State Treasurer should be required by law to give to the State a bond of a fidelity or indemnity company of unquestioned standing and reliability. The premium on this bond should be paid by the State as a part of the Treasurer's contingent expense. Said bond should be made to insure the safety and return of the funds.

Third—A board, composed of three State officers, should designate certain banks in the State in which public funds are to be deposited. The banks so designated should be required to give such security as would insure the repayment of the funds, consisting either of a deposit, as collateral security, of government, State or county bonds or warrants, or the indemnity bond of a sound fidelity company, or an approved personal bond. If personal bonds are permitted, it should be provided that no one interested, either directly or indirectly, as an owner in the bank furnishing the bond shall become a surety thereon. Any State or National bank should be eligible to become a depository on furnishing security approved by the board. When such depositories shall have been designated the Treasurer should be required to deposit the State funds therein, and while they are so deposited according to law he and his bond should be relieved from responsibility for the same. It should be made the duty of the board to consider the class and quality of the security offered, rather than the rate of interest. It should further be made the duty of the board to require from the Treasurer, on the first day of each month, a statement showing in what banks his funds are deposited, and similar statements from the depositories, showing the amount of State funds on deposit on the first day of each month. The Treasurer should be prohibited by law from keeping in any bank deposits aggregating more than fifty per cent. of the capital of the bank.

INDIANA.

In the State of Indiana the State Treasurer is required to use the safes, vaults and other means of security provided by the State at the capitol building for the deposit and safe-keeping of the moneys of the State.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

In the State of South Carolina the State Treasurer is provided with a safe in the vault of one of the banks in the city of Columbia, such bank being designated by the Governor, Treasurer and Comptroller General. He is also required to deposit such moneys as are not placed in the vault so provided, in a bank to be agreed upon by any two of the above-named officers, but depositing in such bank does not relieve him of liability for the safe-keeping of the funds, nor is the bank required to give security.

FLORIDA.

In Florida the State Comptroller may name any banking institution organized under the laws of the State as a State depository, and such depository must give security by the deposit of bonds of the United States or the State of Florida, or other security satisfactory to the Comptroller, but collecting officers are not required by the statute to make use of the depository so designated.

GEORGIA.

In the State of Georgia the Governor is authorized to name and appoint a bank as State depository in each of the principal cities, such appointment to hold for a term of four years, unless revoked in the discretion of the Governor, and the Governor is authorized to make the most advantageous contracts he can for interest to be paid by said depository for the use of public funds. As security for such funds such depository must execute a bond in the sum of fifty thousand dollars, which is approved by the Governor. The Treasurer is prohibited from depositing in any other banks than those designated, but he is not released on the obligation of his bond.

NEBRASKA.

The State of Nebraska provides for the deposit of county funds, and also for the deposit of State funds in designated depositories. In either case the bank designated is required to pay at least three per cent. interest on daily balances, and to give a bond with at least five sureties for the safe-keeping of the funds deposited with it. The deposit in each case is limited to half the penalty of the bond. The depositories are named by the State Treasurer, and the bond is approved by the Governor, Secretary of State and Attorney General. The Treasurer is relieved from liability for money on deposit in the designated depositories.

NEW YORK.

In the State of New York, as in many other States, there does not appear to be any provision as to the State funds, but in that State the County Treasurer is required to designate a particular bank as the depository of the county funds, and he shall agree with such bank upon a rate of interest to be paid on the moneys so deposited, and he shall also require of such depositories a bond for the security of the money deposited with it, but such designation and deposit of moneys does not release the Treasurer.

MINNESOTA.

In the State of Minnesota there are similar provisions both for the deposit of county and State funds. The statute provides a Board of Auditors, consisting of the Governor, Secretary of State and Attorney General, and upon the designation by the State Treasurer of any particular bank as a public depository, such Board of Auditors shall approve the bond which is required to be furnished by the bank so designated. The bond given shall be in double the amount to be deposited with the depository, and shall be signed by at least five sureties. The depository receiving public funds shall pay such interest on daily balances as shall be agreed upon between it and the Treasurer. The Treasurer is not released from the liability.

In the case of county funds, the depository is designated by the County Board of Auditors instead of by the County Treasurer, whereas, in the case of State funds the State Treasurer makes the designation, and the bond given is subject to the approval of the State Board of Auditors.

MISSOURI.

In the State of Missouri there does not appear to be any provision as to State funds, but only for county funds. In that State the matter is within the jurisdiction of the County Court, and that court is required to advertise for bids for the keeping of the State funds for periods of two years. Bidders are required to state what bonus they will pay for the use of the funds for the period designated, and all bids are opened in open court. The successful bidder is required to give a bond with at least five sureties, conditioned for the safe-keeping of the public funds and for any other breach. The bonus is in lieu of interest, and the Treasurer is relieved from responsibility for funds placed in the depository so designated.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

In 1897 a law was passed making it the duty of the Treasurer to designate certain banks in the State as public depositories. Upon being designated, these depositories are required to deposit with the Auditor not less than $25,000 in United States Government or State bonds, and to keep on deposit at all times an amount equal to the amount of State funds in their hands. The State Treasurer and each of the depositories are required to report to the Governor on the first day of each month the amount of public funds on deposit.

NORTH DAKOTA.

The State of North Dakota, in the year 1895, passed a law providing for State depositories. There is created an ex-officio "Board of Deposits," consisting of the Governor, State Auditor and Attorney General, who are required to advertise for bids for the safe-keeping of and payment of interest on State funds. Bidders are limited to the rate of interest at not less than two, nor more than three per cent., and must state in their bids what security they offer. After the acceptance of a bid the board is required to secure from the depository designated a satisfactory bond with not less than five sureties. The State Treasurer is required to deposit in the designated depositories, but in no case more than fifty per cent. of the capital stock of such depository, nor more than one-half of the penalty of the bond. The State Treasurer is also relieved from responsibility for moneys so deposited.

OHIO.

In the State of Ohio there does not appear to be any provision as to State funds, but as to county funds, the County Commissioners may advertise for bids for the safe-keeping thereof, the bidder being limited to the minimum of one per cent. per annum, and being required to furnish satisfactory security, to consist either of a personal bond, or of city, county or municipal bonds, or both. The Commissioners may, at their discretion, accept from the depository the bond of a fidelity and indemnity insurance company in lieu of other security. The Treasurer is relieved from responsibility for moneys in designated depositories.

OTHER STATES.

In the States of Illinois, New York, Connecticut, Vermont, California, Maine, and probably many of the larger States, there does not appear to be any satisfactory regulation governing the deposit of State funds, or requiring the designation of a State depository. In such States as have formulated legislation on this subject, the general plan sought appears to have been an advertisement and bid with a low rate of interest to be paid by the depository, and security to be furnished to the approval of the advertising officers, but, as will be noticed from the above outline, in many States the statute fails of a complete and harmonious plan.

The law of Ohio is probably the fullest development of the plan, and indicates from numerous amendments that it is the development of experience. Even in that State, however, it does not appear to have been applied to the deposit of State funds.

Idaho, Utah, Montana and Colorado have no laws governing the deposits of public moneys. As in Wyoming, the Treasurers are supposed, by their bonds, to be the insurers of the funds, and to do as they please with them.

Permit me to express to your Excellency my gratitude for the aid and counsel which you have always willingly given me in the conduct of my duties.

I desire also to express my appreciation of the valuable assistance rendered by Mr. F. B. Sheldon, who, as Deputy Treasurer during my entire term, has performed his duties with faithfulness and ability far in excess of the compensation he has received.

Upon the following pages will be found detailed statements of the various transactions of the Treasurer's office for the period covered by this report.
